California Western School of Law recently won the 19th National Juvenile Law Moot Court Competition at Whittier Law School in Costa Mesa. Third-year students Rachel M. Ferguson and Susan M. Sindelar defeated a team from Chapman University School of Law in the final round.

In addition to winning the team competition, Ferguson and Sindelar also won best brief, with Ferguson winning best oralist and Sindelar placing third in that category.

Ferguson and Sindelar were coached by San Diego attorneys Lynda Romero and Sara Gros-Cloren. California Western professors Roberta Thyfault and Ruth Hargrove helped the team along with graduate coaches Kate Clark ('10), Reem S. Khalil ('13), and Franciesca D. Balerio ('12).

Other California Western competitors included Angela M. Porter, Jennifer N. Monterroso, and Anali Cortez.
