

Law Project Gets a Cash Infusion for Its Bankruptcy Work

By Randy Frisch
December 10, 2015

San Diego — California Western’s Community Law Project has received a $5,000 grant from the American College of Bankruptcy Foundation to support the free legal services the project provides to individuals seeking counsel on bankruptcy-related issues.

“We are delighted to be the recipients of a generous grant from the American College of Bankruptcy,” said Dana Sisitsky, director of the project. “Individuals across San Diego continue to struggle financially as they attempt to find their ways out from debilitating debt situations. The support of the American College of Bankruptcy will help the Community Law Project assist many of these individuals as they start down the road to financial stability.”

This year, the Community Law Project celebrates its 10th anniversary of providing free legal services to low-income and vulnerable individuals in San Diego, helping them understand and successfully navigate their bankruptcy or other legal issues.