We are here because we endured.
Because we adapted. Because we refused to let our circumstances define our ceilings.

— Jasmin Divas

We are entering a profession built for moments like this.
Moments when rules are tested. Moments when process matters.

— Ashlyn Plant

Commencement Speaker

Judge Michael S. Groch | San Diego County Superior Court

Judge Michael S. Groch serves as Presiding Judge of the San Diego County Superior Court, California's second-largest trial court system. Appointed to the bench in 2010, he brings more than three decades of legal experience, including nearly 20 years as a Deputy District Attorney. His judicial career spans criminal, family, and limited civil assignments, along with significant leadership in court governance and statewide judicial administration. He has served as Dean of the B.E. Witkin Judicial College, Vice President of the California Judges Association, Chair of the San Diego Superior Court Technology Committee, and is a long standing member of the Judicial Council's Information Technology Advisory Committee. His work has focused on judicial education, court technology modernization, and institutional leadership. As Presiding Judge, he oversees 154 judicial officers, nearly 1,100 employees, and a budget exceeding $220 million.

Wherever we go, the skills we gained here will allow us to help people navigate complicated situations and find solutions to difficult problems.

— Arman Sadighian

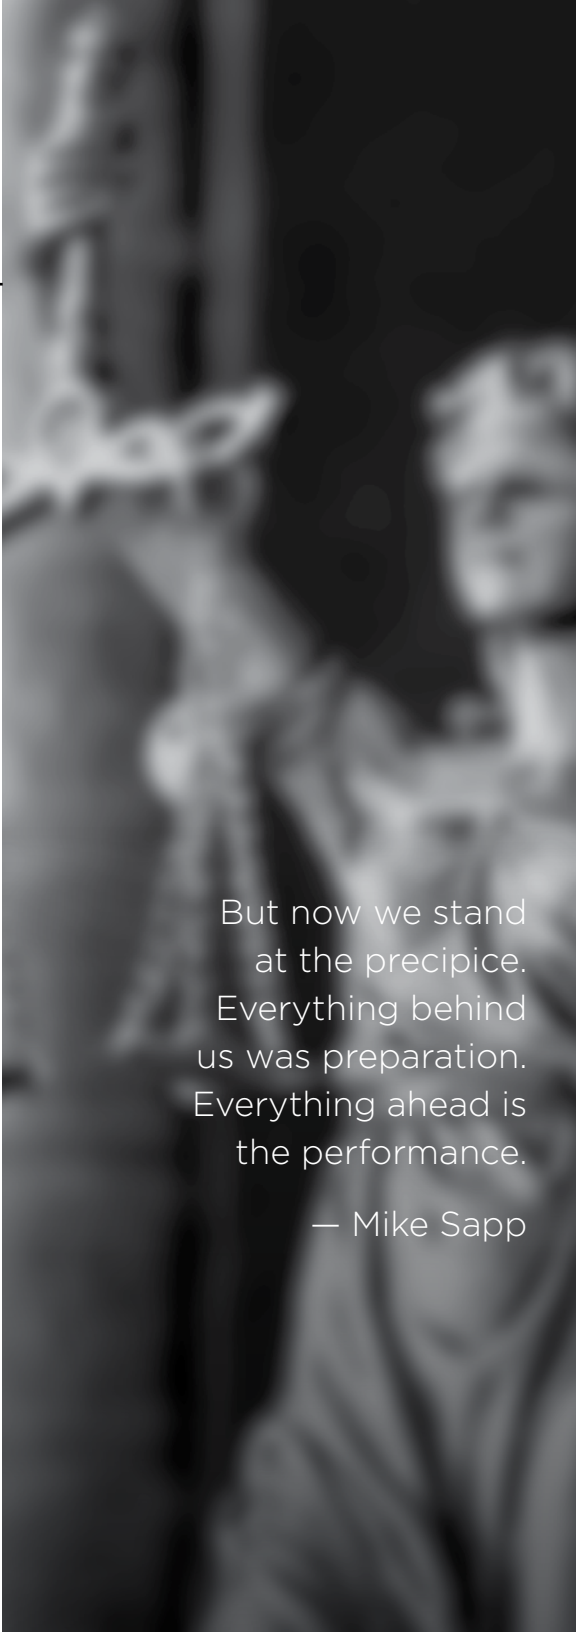

A Juris Doctor is not simply a title we earn today; it is a responsibility we carry forward.

— Jacob Sanchez

JD Candidates

The JD is the doctoral degree necessary for the practice of law in the United States. Students are attracted to the degree because it is the most common preparation for sitting for state bar exams and providing legal counsel to clients. After completing a bachelor's degree, the student typically takes three additional years of specialized, legal course work, 4 to 5 years, by enrolling in the part-time program.

But now we stand at the precipice.
Everything behind
us was preparation.
Everything ahead is the performance.

Wherever you go,
remember this:
excellence in law is not measured solely by wins or prestige,

DOWNTOWN

Our role will be to stand steady when others can't. To bring order where there is chaos. To advocate when someone else feels powerless.

— Riley Wagstaff

The spirit of California Western is not about standing above each other- it is about standing with each other.

— Robert Wood

Academic Apparel

The academic apparel worn today by the faculty and candidates has its origins in the everyday dress of the Medieval European university communities. Codified and standardized in this country late in the last century, it serves as a scholastic heraldry indicating in its elements the degree held, the discipline in which the degree is taken, and the institution granting the degree.

The gowns are of three kinds: the Bachelor's with open, pointed sleeves; the Master's with sleeves covering the arms only to the elbow then falling in narrow closed panels; and the Doctor's with very full sleeves gathered at the wrist and guarded with three velvet bars, the front panels of the gown being also of velvet. The gowns vary in color, and almost always are trimmed in velvet of the color of the particular discipline. The participants today, as recipients of the Juris Doctorate degree, wear this latter gown trimmed in royal purple for law.

The hood is the most colorful, informative, and perhaps most important element of academic dress. Its length, shape and the width of its edging indicate the degree held. The color of the velvet represents the discipline or field of study. For instance, the doctoral hoods awarded are four feet long. The velvet is five inches wide and royal purple for law. The silken lining is turned out and indicates by its colors and pattern the institution granting the degree. The Trustees and candidates wear the hood of California Western School of Law, incorporating our school colors (royal purple and gold).

The popular "Doctoral Tam" in soft velvet is the cap worn today. They are decorated with a purple tassel for a Doctor.
