Essay Question # 1:

It is opening night of a new movie. Don Smith attends the movie at his local Los Angeles movie theater. As the movie begins, Smith is texting his daughter telling her to be in bed by 9:00 p.m. A few seconds later Smith texts her "Call 911!" At the same time, a large man by the name of Joe Barnes is moving toward Smith in the darkened theater. Barnes flashes a light in Smith's face and starts walking towards him in a rushed manner whispering aggressively "HEY! PUT YOUR PHONE AWAY OR LEAVE! I'M SICK OF YOU PEOPLE DOING THAT IN HERE!" Smith recognizes the guy because he saw a news story about a man who assaulted a husband and wife the previous week in the same theater, even following the woman into the women's restroom. To Smith, Barnes fits the description given on the news earlier in the week: 6'1", 200 pounds, late 20's / early 30's, African American male with a beard. The newscaster advised that the assailant "might have been armed." Smith thinks he sees a gun on Barnes's waist but cannot be sure because it is dark and there is a bright light shining in his face.

Smith then leaves the theater, goes to his car where he has a gun in the trunk, retrieves the gun, returns to the theater and takes his seat. He takes out his phone one more time and turns it on, only to hear Barnes yell as he moves toward Smith: "FOOL, DIDN'T I TELL YOU TO LEAVE AND NEVER COME BACK??!? YOU KNOW WHAT? COME HERE!" Barnes reaches for his waist and Smith draws his gun. Smith fires his gun twice, shooting Barnes in the leg and killing a young girl sitting nearby. The girl's parents and brother stay to help her while everyone else rushes out upon hearing the gun shots. Eleven people were injured while rushing from the theater in the ensuing chaos and one man later died in the arms of his blind date while en route to the hospital.

Despite his injuries, Barnes immediately tackles and handcuffs Smith. As the lights come up, Smith realizes that Barnes is actually a private security guard. The theater hired Barnes to ensure the safety of its patrons following the incident the previous week. At no point did Smith see a gun on Barnes's utility belt, but there was a can of pepper spray, a bright yellow taser and a flashlight.

Smith was charged with a myriad of crimes including murder and manslaughter.

Question: Your firm represents Smith in his criminal trial. Smith intends to claim self-defense. In preparation for the trial, you have been asked by a partner in your firm to provide a full analysis under California state law, including CALCRIM Jury Instruction 505, regarding whether "self-defense" is a valid defense for Smith's shooting of Barnes and the resultant injuries and deaths and whether alternative defenses may be available to Smith based on recent cases such as the Trayvon Martin case and the recent movie theater shooting by a retired police officer in Florida.

Essay Question # 2:

For years the coastal city of San Ramon, a small vacation resort city, has operated a small fire department observation plane that twice a week trails a sign that announces various civic events. The city also maintains three beaches that attract as many as 500,000 visitors per year. Each beach has a number of permanent statues of past political and sports figures. Most of the statues were donated to the city and erected after review and acceptance by the city council and building inspector to ensure that they are safe, and aesthetically in keeping with the city's heritage and vacation ambiance. Along the boardwalks and walkways the city maintains flagpoles that carry banners announcing events in and around the city. The city council, however, consistently determined that political announcements would subject a captive vacationing audience to the blare of political propaganda, damage the beach's vacation setting and tranquil ambiance, and severely damage the city's revenue stream.

To increase the city's revenue base, the city recently instituted a program allowing banners to be flown on the city's fire department observation plane and on beach street lamps and flagpoles for a fee. The city excludes any political announcements, but accepts commercial ads for the sale of products as well as private announcements such as weddings and other private events. The city ordinance provides that upon application and payment of a clean-up fee to the city's Beachmaster's office, an individual may obtain a one-day beach permit to erect an event-sign to identify the event location. The event-sign must be no higher than 7 feet or wider than 2 feet and must not contain any lewd or indecent language or tasteless depictions. The city council found that one day limited permit location allows for identification of event locations without undue and unsightly beach clutter.

Reverend Sam Jonas's Faith One Congregation intends to hold a three-day summer revival on one of the city's beaches. Ben Hansford, a local politician facing a tough fall election, would like to have a three-day "Vote-For-Me" political rally and barbeque on an adjacent beach during the summer. Both apply for available advertising space for one week on the city's fire department plane as well as on flagpoles along the beach boardwalk to advertise their events. They also apply for a three-day permit to place beach signs to help participants locate the event. Faith One also petitioned the city council to erect, at Faith One's expense, a permanent statue of Faith One's founder, who played an important role in establishing the religion and the city in the early 1800s. The statue would depict the founder holding a cross and a bible.

The city denies Hansford's request to advertise his "Vote-for-Me" political rally on the city's fire department plane or the beach flagpoles, finding that it was an inappropriate political announcement. It grants a permit to place event-signs on the beach, but limits the permit to one day.

The city grants Faith One's request to fly banners on the city's fire department's plane advertising its summer revival and also to place banners on several beach flagpoles for the prescribed fees. It grants a permit to place event-signs on the beach, but limits the permit to one day. The city, however, rejected Faith One's request to erect a permanent statue of its founder because of its religious nature.

Hansford and Faith One, concerned that their First Amendment rights have been violated by the city, come to you for advice. Please discuss their potential claims and the likelihood of success.
